About Hyalogic

Hyalogic™ was launched with our first product, Synthovial Seven®, a premium oral Hyaluronic Acid (HA) product for overall joint health. The success of this product in the human joint health market has been phenomenal, and has helped establish us as one of the pioneers and leaders in the field of HA nutritional supplements.

Hyaluronic Acid is a polysaccharide that is ubiquitous in mammalian tissue, is found to be crucial for many cellular and body functions. It has been used in the clinical setting for decades. It is such a versatile molecule that has tremendous benefits to so many parts of the body that we have made it our responsibility to introduce other helpful products with HA into the market. Today we have over 50 HA-based supplements and personal care products launched or in development for the benefit of humans, horses, dogs and cats.

We are headquartered in Riverside, MO, USA and have an extensive network of distributors and dealers located throughout the United States and internationally. We partner with several healthcare professionals across the country to conduct cutting edge research on the other uses of HA and its benefits to the body.

Hyalogic thrives because of our unique products and superior customer service. We also believe in educating the public about the benefits of healthy living and the value of using quality products where we have incorporated this wonderful, water-loving molecule called HA. We conduct training seminars in stores and even by phone and have produced useful literature to promote health and general well being.

About Hyaluronic Acid

Hyaluronic Acid (HA), also known as hyaluronan or hyaluronate, is a carbohydrate, more specifically a mucopolysaccharide, occurring naturally throughout the human body. It can be several thousands of sugars (carbohydrates) long. When not bound to other molecules, it binds to water giving it a stiff, viscous quality similar to “Jello”. This viscous gel is one of the most heavily researched substances in medicine today with thousands of trials, mostly in the fields of orthopedics and eye surgery. Its function in the body is, amongst other things, to bind water and to lubricate movable parts of the body, such as joints and muscles. Its consistency and tissue-friendliness allow it to be beneficial in skin-care products as an excellent moisturizer. Because HA is one of the most hydrophilic (water-loving) molecules in nature, it can be described as “nature’s moisturizer”.

If we compare the joints of the human body to a car engine, the joint fluid in the body mimics the oil. At regular intervals we replace the oil in our car engines because the heat and friction breakdown the oil's viscosity. The oil becomes thinner and less able to protect the metal surfaces from excessive wear. Hyaluronic Acid benefits our joints in the same way. As we age the viscosity of the joint fluid lessens. HA helps to maintain normal joint cushioning.

Hyalogic uses an internal quality control approach that we have termed HyaLock which puts the focus on nurturing and maintaining the Hyaluronic Acid molecule. We strive to control the quality of our products from the design and development stage to the marketplace. This approach allows us to provide quality Hyaluronic Acid products that benefit the whole body.

Put a Lock on Quality!

Joints

Hyaluronic Acid is found in all joints, bones and cartilage structures throughout the body. HA is found in various forms of cartilage, but none more than the hyaline cartilage. Hyaline cartilage covers the ends of the long bones where articulation (bending) occurs and provides a cushioning effect for the bones. The hyaline cartilage has been called the “gristle cartilage” because of its resistance to wear and tear. Our joints (like the elbows and knees) are surrounded by a membrane called the synovial membrane which forms a capsule around the ends of the two articulating bones. This membrane secretes a liquid called synovial fluid. Synovial fluid is a viscous fluid full of the HA molecule and has the consistency of motor oil. It has many functions, but none more important than providing the elastic shock absorbing properties of the joint.

Tendons and Ligaments/ Connective Tissue

Connective tissue is found everywhere in the body. It does much more than connect body parts; it has many forms and functions. Its major functions include binding, supporting, protecting, insulating and connecting bone to muscle (tendons) and bone to bone (ligaments). The cushioning allows the tissue to bear weight, withstand great tension and endure abuses that no other body tissue could. All of this is made possible because of the presence of the HA and its ability to form the gelatinous ground substance fluid.

Skin

Young skin is smooth and elastic and contains large amounts of HA that helps keep the skin looking young and healthy. The HA provides continuous moisture to the skin by binding up to 1,000 times its weight in water. With age, the ability of the skin to produce HA decreases, leaving the skin unhealthy and wrinkled. The skin is the largest organ of the body comprising about 15% of the body's weight. Roughly 50% of the Hyaluronic Acid in our body is found in the skin. Hyaluronic Acid and collagen are vital to maintaining the skin's layers and structure. It is the collagen that gives the skin its firmness, but it is the HA that nourishes and hydrates the collagen. Imagine the collagen as the stretchy fibers that restore the skin back to shape when stretched. Collagen is continuously surrounded and nourished by the gelatinous HA substance. Young skin contains high concentrations of Hyaluronic Acid. As we grow older, the body loses its ability to maintain this same concentration in the skin. With decreasing levels of HA in the skin, so goes the ability of the skin to hold water. The result is the skin becomes drier and loses its ability to restore itself. Hyaluronic Acid acts as a space filler by binding to water and thus keeping the skin wrinkle-free.

Eyes

Hyaluronic Acid is highly concentrated inside the eyeball. The fluid inside the eye, called the vitreous humor, is composed almost completely of Hyaluronic Acid. The HA gives the fluid inside the eye a viscous, gel-like property. This gel acts as a shock absorber for the eye and also serves to transport nutrients into the eye. It has been said that after the 5th decade of life, our eyes stop producing the much needed Hyaluronic Acid resulting in various eye concerns.

Scalp Tissue and Hair Follicles

Structurally the scalp is identical to the skin tissue located throughout the body, except it also contains about 100,000 hair follicles that give rise to hair. The dermal layer is composed of connective tissue and the connective tissue, with its gelatinous fluid-like characteristics, provides support, nourishes and hydrates the deep layers of the scalp. The result is healthy lustrous hair and a moisturized scalp. Again, all of this is made possible because of the presence of HA in the scalp tissue and its ability to form this fluid and hold water.

Skin Care

How Do You Use It?

Hyaluronic Acid occurs naturally in your skin, but diminishes as we age. Humectants like Hyaluronic Acid typically have a watery texture and absorb quickly (serums). Emollients are thicker (creams and oils) and stay more on your skin's surface, don't absorb as quickly, and work to lock everything in. The important part is the water because it gets bound by the Hyaluronic Acid and then is delivered to your skin. This is one of the ways Hyaluronic Acid functions as the greatest moisturizing ingredient ever.

What's Best For Me?

With multiple Hyaluronic Acid skincare products to choose from, it can be a bit daunting to try to figure out what's best for your unique skincare concerns. In order to take full advantage of the replenishing and hydrating power our Hyaluronic Acid products provide, it's important to make sure to use them correctly and in the right order.
